Dear Sir/Madam,

Congratulations to you for having taken the courage to open an innovative business enterprise, howsoever challenging it may be. If you evaluate the success rate of start up companies in India in the past, the result is far below the satisfactory level. Why the start up companies fail often in India?

It is because they are not aware of how to design their business.

To make any business successful, one has to make the two parts of Business correctly , first part is Business Design & the second part is Business Operations. Even the B-schools teach Business Operations only (MBA : Masters in Business Administration).

We train Managers/Entrepreneurs as how to design a business correctly (visit www.abhijitnagconsulting.in). We are going to hold a 2 day training program for Start Up companies of Mumbai , where we will train the executives , so that eventual corporate failures can be avoided.

You are invited to participate and seize this golden opportunity.

Thank you.

mumbai Yours faithfully
